The chime of old Christ church ringing from the steeple near by seemed to second, in musical tones, the good man's invitation as he turned and walked away, followed by a number of the citizens of the town. General Putnam, however, engaged Talbot in conversation about the disposition of the stores, while Robert Morris continued his inquiries as to the details of the cruise with Seymour. The perilous situation of the shattered American army was outlined to both of them, and Talbot received orders, or permission rather, to report the capture of the transport to General Washington the next day. Seymour asked permission to accompany him, which was readily granted.

"If you do not get a captain's commission for this, Mr. Talbot," continued Putnam as they bade him good night, "I shall be much disappointed."

"And if you do not find a captain's commission also waiting for you on your return here, Lieutenant Seymour, I shall also be much surprised," added Robert Morris.

"Give my regards to his excellency and wish him a merry Christmas from me, and tell him that he has our best hopes for success in his new enterprise. I will detach 600 men from Philadelphia tomorrow to make a diversion in his behalf," said the general.

"Yes," continued Robert Morris, "and I shall be obliged, Lieutenant Seymour, if you will call at my house before you start and get a small bag of money which I shall give you to hand to General Washington, with my compliments. Tell him it is all I can raise at present and that I am ashamed to send him so pitiable a sum, but if he will call upon me again I shall, I trust, do better next time."

Bidding each other adieu, the four gentlemen separated, General Putnam to arrange for the distribution and forwarding of the supplies to the troops at once, Robert Morris to send a report to the congress, which had retreated to Baltimore upon the approach of Howe and Cornwallis through the Jerseys, and Seymour and Talbot back to the ship to make necessary arrangements for their departure.

Seymour shortly afterwards turned the command of the Mellish over to the officer Mr. Morris designated as his successor, and Talbot delivered his schedule to the officer appointed by General Putnam to receive it. Refusing the many pressing invitations to stay and dine or partake of the other bounteous hospitality of the townspeople, the young men passed the night quietly with Seymour's aunt, his only relative, and at 4 o'clock on Christmas morning, accompanied by Bentley and Talbot, they set forth upon their long, give for some of that punch? My soul wasn't it good?" he continued, smacking his lips in recollection.

"Where are we going, sergeant?" asked another.

"Don't know; the command is 'Three days' rations and light marching order.'"

"Well, we're all of the last, anyway. Look at me! No stockings, leggings torn, no shirt, and you'd scarcely call this thing on my back a coat, would you? What could be lighter? So comfortable, too, in this pleasant summer weather!"

"Oh, shut up, old man! You're better off than I am, anyway. You've got rags to help your shoes out, and just look at mine," said another, sticking out a gaunt leg with a tattered shoe on the foot, every toe of which was plainly visible through the torn and worn openings. "And just look at this," he went on, bringing his foot down hard on the snow covered, frost bound soil, making an imprint which was edged with blood from his wounded, bruised, unprotected feet. "That's my sign manual, and it's not hard to duplicate in the army yonder either."

"That's true. And to think that the cause of liberty's got down so low that we are its only dependence. And they call us the grand army!"

"Well, as you say," went on another recklessly, "we can't get into anything worse, so hurrah for the next move, say I!"

"Three days' rations and light marching order, meaning, I suppose, that we are to leave our heavy overcoats and blankets and foot stoves and such other luxuries behind. That rather indicates that we are going to do something besides retreat. And I should like to get a whack at those mercenary Dutchmen before I freeze or starve," was the reply.

"Bully for you!"

"I'm with you, old man."

"I, too."

"And I," came from the group of undaunted men surrounding the speaker. "And to think," said another, "of its being Christmas day and all those little children at home! Oh, well," turning away and wiping his eyes, "marching and fighting may make us forget boys! I wouldn't mind suffering for liberty if we could only do something, have something to show for it but a bloody trail and a story of defeat. I'm tired of it," he continued desperately. "I'd fight the whole British army if they would only let me get a chance at them!"

"We're all with you there, man, and I guess this time we've got a chance," replied one of the speakers amid a chorus of approval which showed the spirit of the men.

While the men were talking among themselves thus the four riders on the tired horses had ridden up to the farmhouse. A soldier dressed no better than the rest stood before the door.

"Halt! Who are you?" he cried, presenting his musket.

"Friends. Officers from Philadelphia with messages for his excellency," replied the foremost. "Don't you recognize me, my man?"

"Why, it's Lieutenant Talbot! Pass in, sir, and these other gentlemen with you," answered the soldier, saluting. "It's glad the general will be to see you."

Without further preliminaries the young man opened the door and entered, followed by his three companions. A cheerful fire of logs was blazing and crackling in the wide fireplace in the long, low room. On the table before it stood a great bowl of steaming punch, and several officers were sitting or standing about the room in various positions. The uniforms of all save that of one of the men were scarcely less worn and faded, if not quite so tattered, than were those of the escort. The same grim enemies had left the same grim marks upon them as upon the soldiers.

The only well dressed person in the room was a bright eyed young man, a mere boy, just nineteen, wearing the brilliant uniform of an officer of the French army. He was tall and thin, red haired, with a long nose and retreating forehead. His bright eyes and animated manner expressed the interest he felt in a conversation carried on in the French language with his nearest neighbor, another young man scarcely a year his senior. The contrast between the new and gay French uniform of the one and the faded Continental dress of the other was not less startling than that suggested by the difference in their size. The American officer was a small, a very small, man, but in spite of his insignificant stature the whole impression of the man was striking and even imposing. In contrast to the other his face was very handsome, the head finely shaped, the features clear cut and regular. He had a decisive mouth, bespeaking resolution and firmness, and two piercing eyes out of which looked a will as hard and imperious as ever dwelt in mortal man.

In front of the fire were two older men, each in the uniform of a general officer, one of thirty-five or thirty-six years of age, the other perhaps ten years older. The younger of the two, a full faced, intelligent, active, commanding sort of man, whose appearance indicated confidence in himself and the light of whose alert blue eyes told of dashing brilliancy in action and prompt decision in perilous moments, which made him one of those who succeed, would have been more noticed had not his personality been so overshadowed by that of the officer who was speaking to him. The latter was possessed of a figure so tall that it dwarfed every other in the room. He was massively molded, but well proportioned, with enormous hands and feet and long, powerful limbs, which indicated great physical force, and having withal an erect and noble carriage, easy and graceful in appearance, which would have immediately attracted attention anywhere, even if his race had not been more striking than his figure.

And this was the man upon whom was laid the burden of the war of the Revolution, and to whom, under God, were due the mighty results of that epoch making contest. Seldom if ever do we see men of such rare qualities that when they leave their appointed places no other can be found to fill them, but if such a one ever did live this was he.

QUESTION AT ISSUE

Does the State Board Or County Board Fix Valuation of Banks?

INTERESTING PROBLEM

At Indianapolis Certain Banks Maintain That State Board Is the Only Authorized Body.

County Attorney Holds Different Views and Understanding of the Matter Is Sought.

Indianapolis, June 30.—Question has arisen in the county board of review as to the right of that body to fix the valuation of banks. Officers of some of the banks say that they regard the state board of tax commissioners the only proper body to pass on the valuations of banks, for the reason that the assessments are made on the stockholders individually, and not on the banks as corporations. Some of the members of the board of review also take this position. County Attorney Martin Hugg has given an opinion that the county board of review can properly fix the valuations of banks. Bank officers were summoned to appear and it is probable that an understanding will be reached without contest.

Officers of the various trust companies of the city were before the board supplying information in making up the valuations.

GHOULS SUSPECTED

It Is Feared That Grave Robbers Are Again at Work.

Noblesville, Ind., June 30.—It is the belief of many persons in and around Fisher's Station that cemeteries in the southern part of Hamilton county are again being robbed of their dead. The excitement of a year ago having died down, they think ghoul from Indianapolis continue to violate the law as did Cantrell and his gang, except they are a little more cautious. Noah Manship, Democratic nominee for commissioner in the First district, and one of the men who worked up the case that resulted in the conviction of Hampton West, says the people of his neighborhood have good reasons for believing that ghoul have resumed their work in that locality.

It is said to be a noticeable fact that as soon as anyone dies one of two men take the first train to Indianapolis. This circumstance has been watched for several months, and it has never been known to fail. One of the men was "shadowed" on his trip, and it is known that he visited places which were indirectly connected with medical colleges.

Stirring Up Is Promised.

Noblesville, Ind., June 30.—Elwood Cox, a local contractor, has filed charges with the council against Marshal Stephenson, alleging willful neglect of duty. Stephenson, it is alleged, permits intoxicated men on the streets without making an effort to arrest them. It is also charged that on last Sunday he repeatedly refused to stop men from going into the Mecca saloon in this city after a number of citizens had called his attention to the fact that the saloon was open. The ministers' association is behind the prosecution, and it will not be a surprise if charges are filed against other city officials.

Doctors Will Fight Quackery.

Hammond, Ind., June 30.—The semi-annual meeting of the Kankakee Valley Medical Society, a newly formed organization of much professional importance, is in session in this city. Physicians are present from Valparaiso, Lowell, Rochester, Delphi, Brook, Monticello, Winamac, Chesterton, Plymouth, East Chicago, Crown Point, South Bend, Knox and Logansport. The object of organization is to bring all physicians practicing in counties touching the Kankakee valley in closer relationship, and to fight quackery.

The Omission of a Word.

Bloomington, Ind., June 30.—In the liquor license contests before the circuit court Judge Wilson decided that the omission of the word "ward" in the temperance people's remonstrance against granting license made the remonstrance void. This decision permits the Hotel Bowles bar and the saloon of Troutman and Demoss to reopen. Five other applicants will find the remonstrances hold good against them.

Incorrigibility Is Charged.

Hammond, Ind., June 30.—A year ago William Ryan eloped with fourteen-year-old Fay Brickel to Michigan, where they were married. Ryan has just had his wife sent to the reform school until she is twenty-one years old. He alleges incorrigibility.

IN BATTLE ARRAY

Two Great Japanese Armies
Form Juncture In Face of the Enemy.

LONG FIGHTING FRONT

For 120 Miles the Mikado's Troops
Under Generals Oku and Kuroki
Stretch Their Length.The Tension In St. Petersburg Pending
Reports of Expected Battle Is Becoming Acute.

Tokio, June 30.—The Japanese second army has effected a juncture with the first army and the whole force now has a fighting front of 120 miles.

St. Petersburg, June 30.—The fact that no further news of the land operations has been received does not serve to relieve the tension which is general throughout the city. The officials continue to feel confidence in General Kuropatkin's judgment and in his ability to deal with the momentous situation, but the general public is keyed up in expectation of a great battle and is impatient for news of any sort.

The report from Tokio that a further raid has been made by the Vladivostok squadron arrived too late to be generally circulated. The report tallies with the intimation of the squadron's activity in press dispatches of June 27. These dispatches said that a belief prevailed here that the Vladivostok vostok squadron had put to sea Saturday last and was likely to be next heard of in the Korean straits. At the same time a Russian correspondent at Vladivostok told pains to say that Vice Admiral Skrydloff's squadron would probably be unable to go out again for weeks, as the ships had to go into drydock for overhauling. The Vladivostok report is considered by some as a blind.

Conditions at Port Arthur.

Chefoo, June 30.—Eight refugees who left Port Arthur in a Chinese junk were picked up this morning. They belonged to the upper class. The information they gave seems reliable. They stated that the Russian ships now consist of the following ships in good condition: The Czarevitch, Retvizan, Pobieda, Peresviet, Poltava, Diana, Bayan, Novik and twenty torpedo craft and smaller boats. The torpedo transport Amur is damaged and the battleship Sevastopol slightly damaged, but they can soon be repaired. There are 12,000 sailors and 40,000 soldiers in the fortress. Women are largely employed as nurses. There are 250 artisans and 2,000 citizens. These 2,000 have now been drafted into the army and are drilling daily. There is plenty of food, but the government is controlling the prices to prevent speculation. The refugees also stated that owing to the jeers of the army the fleet was forced to make its recent demonstration on June 23 in order to preserve the morale of the garrison.

Japs Carry Three Forts.

Tokio, June 30.—In fierce fighting which took place at the rear of Port Arthur Sunday, June 26, the attack was simultaneous by the Japanese troops on three hills, which were strongly fortified. After an overwhelming bombardment the mikado's men advanced and drove out the Russians.

Not a Likely Story.

Tokio, June 30.—The report sent out from St. Petersburg of General Oku's retirement is ridiculed in Japan, where the delay in forcing a great battle is well understood to be due to the habit of Japanese generals in not striking before the deliberate completion of all their preliminaries.

Japs Capture Kai Chau.

Tokio, June 30.—Severe fighting took place at Kai Chau on June 25, which resulted in the capture of that place on the morning of June 26.

A FITTING TRIBUTE

Service in Memory of the Slocum Victims
Held at New York.

New York, June 30.—Services in commemoration of those who lost their lives in the Slocum disaster were held in Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the mayor's relief committee. The big hall was crowded to the doors. The Rev. Dr. George C. F. Haas, whose congregation was almost most wiped out by the disaster, occupied a seat on the platform. After preliminary exercises Mayor McClellan addressed the meeting. He said that while nothing that any one could say or do could mitigate the sorrow of the bereaved ones, yet in this hour of trial it could at least be shown them that their sorrows are shared and are the common property of the entire people. He said that what little could be done for the consolation and aid of the bereaved had been done so generously and modestly as to make one proud of American manhood.

BANKER MUST ANSWER

Cashier of Bank at Aurora Charged With Big Shortage.

Aurora, Ill., June 30.—Colonel Jacob H. Plain, cashier of the German American National bank of Aurora, has been arrested, charged with the misappropriation of $60,000 of the funds of the bank. The peculations have extended over a period of three years, during which time bank examiners have several times gone over the affairs of the bank and reported all correct. When the shortage was finally discovered by a special bank examiner Mr. Plain was placed under arrest. When taken before United States Commissioner Footie the prisoner waived examination and was held to the July term of the federal grand jury under bonds of $10,000.

Mr. Plain has turned over all his private accounts to the directors of the bank and his father and brother have made good a part of the deficit.

Serious Plight of Firemen.

New York, June 30.—Forty-three firemen, four of whom will probably die, were overcome by smoke and gas at a fire in the sub-cellar of the double five-story brick building at 383 Broadway. Half a hundred employees were driven from the building and the damage is estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. The smoke from the burning material was so dense and so pungent that the firemen could work in it for but a few minutes at a time, and many of those who braved it fell prostrate where they stood. Some who fell lay unnoticed on the floor for minutes and one man remained for nearly an hour before finally discovered and dragged to the open air.

Foul Murder Suspected.

Danville, Va., June 30.—Miss Pauline Edwards, aged sixteen, the daughter of a well-known farmer, was found dead in a creek near her home in this county. The body was partly submerged and there is evidence of foul play. The young woman's clothing was torn and disarranged. The water in the creek is not more than a few inches deep, which eliminates the possibility of her having fallen in and drowned.

Armistice Is Sought.

Gyang Tse, Tibet, June 30.—A lama came in under a flag of truce from the Tibetans, asking an armistice pending the arrival of shigatse or officials from Larva, who will be prepared to negotiate with the British expedition. The British will undertake negotiations providing the Tibetan officials have sufficient authority.

The prohibitionists are having a hard time getting together. Some of them have been wanting to nominate General Miles even if he is a pronounced democrat. Others have been opposing Miles with vehemence, contending that no man who is not a prohibitionist should be nominated. The opposition will be considered consistent at least.

FAIRBANKS is Indiana's seventh vice-presidential candidate. First, Geo. W. Julian with John P. Hale, the candidates of the free democracy in 1852; then Colfax, republican, with Grant; Hendricks, democrat, with Tilden; English, democrat, with Hancock; Hendricks, democrat, with Cleveland; and now Fairbanks, republican, with Roosevelt.

THE candidate makers have quite a string of aspirants for the place that will be made vacant by the election of Senator Fairbanks vice president. Not all of them are candidates and probably some of them will not be. The list includes the following: Governor Durbin, James A. Hemmway, Chas. B. Landis, E. D. Crumpacker, John L. Griffiths, A. C. Harris, Warren G. Sayre, Harry New, Geo. W. Steele, E. E. Hendee and James M. Barlow.

BEFORE the city council makes any further expense in doubtful litigation with the Water Company would it not be wise and the better part of good business judgment to count the cost of past litigation and let the taxpayers know just how much it has cost them up to date? Have the attorneys employed present their claims for their fees in full up to the present time. Figure up what has already been paid out to attorneys, add to this court costs, witness fees, cost of printing briefs, traveling expenses and other miscellaneous items of expense. Let an itemized statement be made of all expenses of this litigation up to present time. All costs paid come out of the city treasury and the taxpayers, we believe, would like to know the total expense to them up to date. We suspect that the total amount will surprise the councilmen themselves.

AN INDIAN DUEL.

The Famous Fight Between Chief Carpenter and Price.

"The methods of fighting duels among the Indians," said an old frontiersman, "were varied, each tribe having its own peculiar custom. Some of the tribes learned to fight according to the code of the white man, however, among these the Choctaws or Cherokees, which reminds me of the famous duel in July of 1883, when the celebrated Choctaw chief, Carpenter, fought near the Pine Creek Indian agency with a white man named Price. Chief Carpenter was a splendid type of Indian, tall and straight and comely, and had been well educated and had natural talents and natural instincts that put him head and shoulders over his Indian associates.

"As usual, this trouble was started by a disagreement over some trivial matter, which caused a dispute and ended in the white man calling his red brother a liar. Throughout the trouble the big Indian had remained perfectly calm, although considerably angered, and as the insult felt he gazed coldly into the eyes of Price and said:

"Your blood shall wash out that word."

"Whenever you're ready, say the word," cried Price. "You can do your washing right here and now if you please."

"Not now, sir, but tomorrow morning, when the sun peeps over the top of that wild plum tree, you must be here and without fail."

"The report of the duel spread far and wide, and at an hour considerably before sunrise a large crowd had gathered on the dueling ground to witness the encounter. Price was the first on the field, and for a time it looked as if there would be no Carpenter. But, true to his Indian blood, the chief disdained coming too soon at the appointed place as much as he would have feared coming too late, and it was just as the first rays of the sun stole over the soft green of the tree that the red man stood in place. Not a word was spoken by either man. Both drew their pistols, and, raising the weapons, they fired almost simultaneously. Carpenter reeled, but with a mighty effort checked a tendency to spin round, and, staggering, fired as the crack of his opponent's pistol sounded for the second time. This time Price jumped high in the air and landed on his face stone dead.

"With a wild shout the crowd pressed forward to surround the lucky chief, but before all could reach him he fell senseless. Price had been shot through the heart, clean as a whistle, a remarkable shot considering the condition of the Indian when he made it, and a shot Carpenter could have made in the first place without a doubt had he been as determined to kill as Price proved himself when his bullet buried itself in the Indian's breast."

THE UNIVERSAL EXPOSITION

The Achievements of Individuals and Nations Faithfully Recorded by This Encyclopedia of Society.

By FREDERICK J. V. SKIFF, Director of Exhibits, World's Fair.

"The wisdom of all ages is none too great for the world's work." In this single salient sentence, uttered in his famous address at Buffalo in September, 1901, President McKinley described the object and the result of expositions.

A modern universal exposition is a collection of the wisdom and achievements of the world, for the inspection of the world, for the study of its experts, by which they may make comparisons and deduction and develop plans for future improvements and progress. Such a universal exposition might well be called an encyclopedia of society. It constitutes a classified, compact, indexed compendium of the achievements and ideas of society in all phases of its activity, extending to the most material as well as the most refined. It offers illustrations covering the full field of social performance, from the production of the shoes on our feet and the pavement beneath them to a presentation of the rarest and most delicate creations of the brains and hands of men in what are called the fine arts of civilization.

The Universal Exposition in St. Louis in 1904 will be such a social encyclopedia in the most comprehensive and accurate sense. It will give to the world in revised and complete details "a living picture of the artistic and industrial development at which mankind has arrived" and will actually provide "a new starting point from which all men may direct future exertions." It will present for the inspection of specialists in all lines of industrial and social endeavor and for the public an assembly of the best which the world has done and has to show in industry, art and science, and what is very important, it will offer these achievements of society, these trophies of civilization, in a highly selected, accurately classified array.

The creators of the St. Louis Exposition have had the experience of all previous great expositions by which to plan and effect its high organization. The continuous and repeated burden of the message of experience handed down by all expositions has been more perfect, more effective classification and arrangement of exhibits.

The classification of the St. Louis Exposition has been prepared to present a sequential synopsis of the developments that have marked man's progress. On its bases will be assembled the most highly organized exposition the world has yet seen.

The St. Louis classification is divided into 16 departments, 144 groups and 807 classes. These grand departments in their order will record what man has accomplished at this time with his faculties, industry and skill and the natural resources at his command in the environment in which he has been placed.

At the head of the Exposition classification has been placed Education, through which man enters social life. Second comes Art, showing the condition of his culture and development. Liberal Arts and Applied Sciences are placed third, to indicate the result of his education and culture, illustrate his tastes and demonstrate his inventive genius, scientific attainment and artistic expression. These three departments equip him for the battle and prepare him for the enjoyments of life. The raw material departments, Agriculture, Horticulture, Mining and Forestry, show how man conserves the forces of nature to his uses. The Department of Manufactures will show what he has done with them; the Department of Machinery the tools he has used. The Department of Transportation will show how he overcomes distances and secures access to all parts of the world. The Department of Electricity will indicate the great forces he has discovered and utilized to convey power and intelligence. And through the several departments to Anthropology, in which man studies man; and to Social Economy, which will illustrate the development of the human race, how it has overcome the difficulties of civilization and solved problems in which society is involved.

Last is placed physical culture, in which man, his intelligence having reached the supreme point, is able to treat himself as an animal, realizing that his intellectual and moral constitutions require a sound physical body to prompt them to the proper performance of their function.

Education is the keynote of the Universal Exposition of 1904. Each department of the world's labor and development will be represented at St. Louis, classified and installed in such manner that all engaged or interested in such branch of activity may come and see, examine, study and go away advised. Each of the separate sections of the Exposition will be an equivalent of—or, rather, will be in actuality a comprehensive and most effective object lesson in the line of industrial and social achievement and progress which it presents.

Cost of Seeing the World's Fair.

From any point within 300 miles of St. Louis a person may travel to the World's Fair this year, view the wonders of the Exposition for three days and expend the same money he would pay in any other year for train fare alone. This is an absolute fact.

The Western Passenger Association has agreed on a ten day excursion rate, 250 miles or more from St. Louis, for one and one-fifth fare for the round trip.

Triumph of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soothes the sore. A bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering with injuries entail. For sale by C. Minous.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

Resolutions Pertaining to Water Works Litigation Passed.

The city council met in special session last night and after more or less discussion adopted three separate resolutions pertaining to the water works litigation. The first resolution adopted, on which the council was unanimous, reads as follows:

RESOLVED by the common council of the city of Seymour, Indiana, that said city give notice to the Seymour Water Company in accordance with Section 21 of the ordinance and contract under which said Water Company operates in said city, expects and intends to exercise its option of purchase in accordance with the provisions of said ordinance.

Another resolution adopted is as follows: Be it

RESOLVED that the Mayor and Councilmen Henry P. Miller and George Huber be and are hereby appointed a committee to negotiate, if possible, a settlement of all litigation with the Seymour Water Company.

The third resolution, which was discussed at length and on which there was quite a difference of opinion, but which was finally adopted by a vote of seven to three reads as follows: Be it

RESOLVED that the city attorney, together with the attorneys heretofore employed by the city to prosecute the litigation between the city of Seymour and the Seymour Water Company be and are hereby instructed to take such steps as may be necessary to prepare said case for re-trial in the Jennings circuit court and otherwise protect the interests of the city in said litigation.

The Watson Collision.

Still another suit has been filed against the Big Four and B. & O. S-W. railways, arising out of the accident of June 12 at Watson. The action is brought by Mrs. Margaret Reardon, and James Hoffmiller, the B. & O. engineer, is made a party to the suit. Damages are asked to the amount of $25,000, it being alleged that the injuries received by the plaintiff will probably keep her a cripple to the end of her days. A few days ago, it is said, it was thought she would die and the physicians believed that a blood clot had formed on the spinal cord, causing the paralysis. Her home is in New Albany.

Squirrels Came High.

We are told that two Mitchell men can now tell the exact price of a squirrel killed out of season. One day last week two of our nimrods went out hunting and succeeded in bagging one poor little squirrel for which they paid the game warden $38.00. If this be the case, $38.00 per head for squirrels seems to us a little high, but of course the higher the price the better they taste. Leave them off our bill of fare, please.—Mitchell Commercial.
